

Martin Senn

Dr. Martin Senn is associate professor of International Relations at the University of Innsbruck and guest lecturer at the Diplomatic Academy of Vienna. In his research and teaching he focuses on the emergence and change of order(s) in world politics, international political communication as well as on nuclear (non)proliferation and disarmament. His recent publications include a special issue on the societal relevance of political science in the Austrian Journal of Political Science, a special issue on 'The Transformation of Targeted Killing and International Order' (together with Jodok Troy) in Contemporary Security Policy and a special section on 'Background Ideas in International Relations' (together with Markus Kornprobst) in the British Journal of Politics and International Relations.